Government Printing Works (GPW) Internship Programme 2026/2027 For Operations Management Face Value

Description

The Government Printing Works (GPW) is offering a Graduate Internship Programme for the 2024/2025 financial year. This program is designed to provide recent graduates with practical work experience in relevant fields, aligning with their academic qualifications. The internship is structured to offer participants exposure to real-world operations within the public sector, specifically focusing on operations management and related areas.

The GPW Internship Programme is a 24-month initiative aimed at equipping graduates with hands-on experience and professional development in their respective disciplines. The programme targets qualified graduates who seek to enhance their skills and knowledge, thus preparing them for future employment opportunities. This initiative also contributes to addressing skills shortages within the public service sector.

Responsibilities

Interns participating in this program will be exposed to various functions within the operations management domain. Responsibilities may include, but are not limited to:

- Assisting with day-to-day operations management activities.
- Supporting logistics and supply chain management processes.
- Contributing to transport and economic analysis relevant to the department's objectives.
- Participating in projects that involve operational planning, resource allocation, and efficiency improvements.

Qualifications

To qualify for the GPW Internship Programme, candidates must hold a Diploma or Degree in one of the following fields:

- Operations Management
- Logistics
- Supply Chain Management
- Transport
- Economics

Applicants should also demonstrate strong analytical, problem-solving, and communication skills, as well as the ability to work collaboratively within a team.

Job Benefits

The GPW Internship Programme offers graduates a valuable opportunity to gain professional experience within the public sector. Benefits include:

- Practical experience in a government setting.
- Mentorship from experienced professionals.
